Integrated Project Delivery and Public Projects

Recently enacted laws and regulations have expanded public owners ability to use a variety of alternative project delivery methods. Stimulus funding requires that projects move forward quickly and other financial and schedule pressures have made the use of integrated project delivery (IPD) a valuable resource to public owners. Discover the options for alternative project delivery, the value of using a collaborative approach, and the new tools that are available for delivering your project.

Learn about:

- Advantages of IPD to the consulting and construction industry
- The current status of California laws and regulations related to design-build and other IPD methods
- When it makes sense to use alternative project delivery methods
- The steps an owner needs to take for a successful IPD project
- What the consulting and construction industry needs to succeed at IPD

Presenters:

Ken Fredrickson, Senior Vice President, URS
Heather L. DeBlanc, Esq. NOSSAMAN LLP
Habib Hariri, Principal Engineer, City of Riverside Public Utilities
